

The biggest change I made from the start is in the general architecture. I realised I needed to make a LamportClock file and class which was something I overlooked at the beginning. This change was something easy to implement and didn't impact the rest of my project and other classes.

I didn't talk to the lecturers about my design so I don't have any things else that I changed.

